GCHS renovation planned

$12-14 million sought

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

A proposal to renovate the 67-year-old Granite City High School would not require a property tax rate increase for the school district, Superintendent Steve Balen says.

Instead, the district would acquire new debt for the $12 million to $14 million renovation project and continue to tax at the same rate for its bond and interest fund after debt on a previous bond issue is retired later this year.

The high school renovation proposal will be discussed tonight at a special meeting of the School Board.

Balen said that two architects and a representative of a bond company will address specifics of proposals to renovate the high school.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. today in the district's board office, 20th and Adams streets.

When competing proposals were submitted several years ago, high school renovation costs were estimated at between $12 million and $14 million. Balen said that he does not expect the cost to be much higher now.

"The items that would increase costs, like the American with Disabilities Act compliance and a sprinkler system, were included in the plans at that time," Balen said. He also said that, if the board decides to go forward with the proposal, no tax increase would be needed.

"This is something that happens only once in a lifetime," Balen said.

"We have gotten 67 years out of the building now. With renovation, we can get another 50 years."

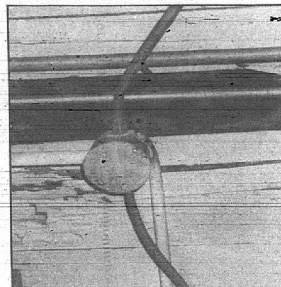

"I think it is important to note that a 'yes' vote on this would not require an increase in taxes," he said.

Instead of a tax rate increase, the district would seek to finance the project through a bond issue and continue to tax at the current rate — about 34 cents per $100 in assessed valuation — for its bond and interest fund, Balen said.

If the board approves the proposal, voters would be asked to continue the 34-cent tax in November's election.

In 1984, the school district established a tax for its bond and interest fund to retire debt that had accumulated to about $3 million.

The district refinanced the debt in 1991. Final payment on the refunding bonds is to be made this year and without voter approval the 34-cent tax would be eliminated. The district last levied for that fund at a rate of 34 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

"Over a 20-year period, maintaining that 34-cent rate, we could pay off a $12 million debt," Balen said.

Warfield back as alderman

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Mac Warfield is back in the thick of things in Granite City.

On Tuesday night, Warfield, a former alderman and street superintendent, was appointed 8th Ward alderman by Mayor Ron Selph.

Warfield, who was recently elected chairman of the Madison County Democratic Party, replaces Judy Whitaker, who gave up her aldermanic post after almost nine years to become city clerk.

City Clerk Bob Stevens retired Tuesday after serving for 24 years.

Selph made both appointments official Tuesday night, with little dissent from the City Council.

Whitaker, who will serve as clerk until May 1, 1995, was confirmed by a unanimous voice vote.

She said she expects opposition for the clerk position in next April's election from Police Capt. Roy Koburn, who was unsuccessful in his challenge to Stevens last year.

Not guilty

U.S. jury finds Maeras innocent of arson

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Federal prosecutors failed to convince a jury that Jerry Maeras was responsible for the 1987 fire at his used car lot in Madison.

After deliberating a little less than two hours Wednesday afternoon, a jury found Maeras not guilty of arson.

He had been charged with arson in connection with the fire. Oct. 12, 1988, that burned his Golden Auto Sales building.

Maeras, a former Lahey Funeral Home on Madison Avenue, the five-day trial was held in federal court in East St. Louis.

In his closing statement, Stan Stasiulis, Maeras' attorney, belittled what he called the "pass-the-buck" investigation of the case. He said the authorities had 5½ years to investigate the case and had not done it.

Yet, Stasiulis said, in the 5½ months since Maeras was charged, the defense had been able to put together a more complete investigation than the prosecution.

From the opening statement of the trial, Stasiulis said, "We never said we would prove Jerry Maeras was innocent — that's not our job. But in 5½ years (the prosecution) has not come up with anything that proves Jerry Maeras is guilty."

He said the investigation was botched from beginning to end and failed to prove anything other than that Maeras was in the vicinity of the building the night of the fire.

While no one knows what a proper investigation might have turned up, Stasiulis said, "Investigation that was done failed to prove anything and 'Jerry should not have to pay for their mistakes.'"

Stasiulis said no one had ever attempted to interview neighbors or other people around the scene who might have seen something, no one had ever interviewed persons who might have been with Maeras, and no one ever attempted to collect evidence beyond the samples from the floor of the building.

He said that, when Madison Police Sgt. Rick Bailew, who assisted State Fire Marshal Investigator Clyde Goin the day after the fire, was asked why that type of interviewing and investigation wasn't done, Bailew said it was the job of the state fire marshal.

Stasiulis said the four or five other Madison police officers and firemen who testified also "passed the buck" to someone else.

"They were all chiefs," Stasiulis said. "There was not an Indian out there."

One patrolman at the scene of the fire said he had better things to do than direct traffic for a fire.

"He did have better things to do — he should have been investigating," Stasiulis said.

When Goin was asked about that type of investigation, Stasiulis said, "Goin agreed these would have been good things to do, but said it was up to the local authorities."

The federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms had put together a financial statement, he said, but little else.

Bennett is now acting chief

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Venice Police Chief James Bennett — suspended since the first week of March — returned to duty Wednesday.

Mayor Tyrone Echols said Tuesday he was bringing Bennett back to duty, but "right now it is in an acting status."

"He has been given a clean bill of health by some folks who were helping him with his problems and I'm comfortable with his ability to do the job."

"It has not been pleasant, but the way I see my job it is to protect the taxpayers at all costs. You've got to do what you've got to do. So he'll be acting chief for a while and, hopefully, things will work out for the best."

When Echols suspended Bennett with pay, Echols said the decision was "strictly a personnel matter" and he has consistently declined to give any other details. Echols said Bennett "may or may not" return depending on "how things work out."

During Bennett's absence, the shift commanders took care of the day-to-day operation of the department and Echols served as acting police chief when necessary.

Bennett's return to the department coincides with a directive from Echols at Tuesday's City Council meeting for the police department to take a hard look (See BENNETT, Page 10A)

Zoning plan goes back to panel

Selph seeking compromise on car lot proposal

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

A proposed zoning amendment that would allow used car sales in a special zoning district on Madison Avenue has been placed on hold.

The City Council voted 9-5 Tuesday night to refer the controversial amendment to the aldermanic Planning and Zoning Committee while Mayor Ron Selph tries to work out a compromise with Bob and Alice Milankovics.

The Milankovics have petitioned the city for permission to establish a used car lot at 2440-42 Madison Ave., the corner of Madison Avenue and 25th Street.

While the Planning and Zoning Commission on March 30 voted 8-1 to deny the petition, the majority of the City Council has expressed a desire to approve the petition.

The commission is an advisory citizen board that holds public hearings on proposed zoning changes and makes recommendations to the City Council.

A simple majority is not enough to pass the zoning amendment. Because petitions objecting to the proposal were filed with the city clerk, a two-thirds vote of the council — 10 votes — and the signature of the mayor are needed for the amendment to take effect.

Alderman Dan Partney, a proponent of the zoning change, said he made the motion to refer the matter to the aldermanic committee in order to let Selph continue discussions with the Milankovics regarding a possible alternative site.

"Basically, we're sitting on (the proposed amendment)," Partney said.

"If it came to a vote tonight, it would be approved or denied tonight. This is a way to work things out within guidelines all parties are comfortable with," he said.

Alderman Craig Tarpoff, an opponent of the amendment, wanted to bring the matter to a conclusion Tuesday night.

"The issue is not this specific car lot. The issue is whether we do away with B-1 zoning. I see no reason to delay the vote," Tarpoff said.

Tarpoff said that about 7 percent of the city's housing stock is in or adjacent to the B-1 district, which includes all property on Madison Avenue from 24th to 30th

County changes position, OKs loudspeakers for Klan

Madison County officials are backing off a provision of a new ordinance intended to turn down the volume of a Ku Klux Klan rally on the courthouse steps.

Knights of the Ku Klux Klan leader Thomas Robb last week threatened to sue Madison County if officials attempted to enforce the ordinance prohibiting loudspeakers at rallies and demonstrations on county property.

County Administrator Jim Monday said the Klan would be allowed to use loudspeakers as long as they kept them outside.

Monday told the County Board's Buildings Committee that Robb had misunderstood the ordinance, which Monday said only restricts loudspeakers indoors.

But State's Attorney William Haine said the ordinance applies both indoors and outdoors. It is up to the County Board to decide whether to enforce it, he said.

"If (the board) decides this does not apply, that's up to them," said Haine, whose staff drafted the ordinance. "What the County Board wants is for (the Klan) to come, say their piece and get the hell out of town and for everyone else to ignore them."

The ordinance, adopted in March in response to Robb's application for a rally permit, prohibits demonstrators from using loudspeakers or amplifiers on county property.

In a letter to Monday, Robb said the loudspeaker restriction would violate his First Amendment right to free speech. Robb also argued the ordinance would be unenforceable since it was adopted after he applied for a permit.

Last week, Monday and Haine refused to budge on the issue, saying the ordinance was reasonable and not a violation of anyone's constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech.

Haine declined to comment on whether not enforcing the ordinance's loudspeaker provision would set a precedent.

"I don't want to quibble about what the ordinance says. If the County Board doesn't want it to apply, then it doesn't apply. I work for them," Haine said.

Robb did not return phone calls.

The Knights of the KKK, based in Harrison, Ark., is expected to rally on the plaza between the courthouse and Administration Building at 6 p.m. May 6. About 15 Klansmen are expected to attend.

The county demonstration ordinance also prohibits burnings on county property and interfering with public officials.

A coalition of anti-racist groups will conduct a peace walk through Edwardsville beginning at 8 p.m. May 6 at the Sports Complex on Center Grove Road.

MADD leader calls truce with Haine

A crusader against drunken driving is waving the white flag after a heated exchange with the Madison County State's Attorney's Office.

Carolyn Dearduff, president of the Madison County chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, has retracted her statements accusing State's Attorney William Haine of favoring drunk drivers more favorably than their victims.

There had previously been words exchanged from both sides and these disputes were published in the paper.

Dearduff said in a written statement, "We in MADD acknowledge that they have been unfair to suggest that State's Attorney Bill Haine did not care about victims or that he did not ever favor prison time for DUI offenders who kill someone."

The letter, a result of a meeting between officials from Haine's office and MADD, was sent to The Alton Telegraph but not to Haine.

Haine declined to comment on the letter, but he acknowledged both sides had met and agreed areas of concern. He said the meeting was productive and positive.

Dearduff also described the meeting as productive and informative.

"There was a free exchange of information from both parties, and we left the meeting with a more clear understanding of the difficult challenges we each face, particularly with issues regarding victim services," she said.

In a previous exchange brought on after Haine's office reached a plea agreement in the rockless homicide case, Dearduff accused Haine of favoring probation over prison time. She also accused him of showing little respect for victims.

"Haine doesn't think anyone should go to prison when they get drunk and kill somebody," she had said.

Her ire was sparked after Haine's office reached the plea agreement March 22 with a 68-year-old Bethalto man who killed a young woman while he was driving the wrong way on Interstate 270. Part of the agreement called for prosecutors not to make a recommendation on the man's sentencing.

"Haine always claims how he sticks up for the victim in a trial, and you ask me, that's a bunch of crap," Dearduff had said.

MADD officials in Chicago and Jacksonville called for a meeting with Haine and his staff after his assistant, Mark Von Nida, lashed back at Dearduff, calling her destructive and self-interest.

Venice commits funds for McKinley Bridge renovation

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Continuing to clear the way for the planned renovation of the McKinley Bridge, Venice aldermen approved two resolutions Tuesday.

The resolutions give city approval to the $7.9 million project and commitment to the city's share of the costs, approximately $800,000. The remainder of the project is being funded with a $5.9 million federal grant and funds from the Illinois Department of Transportation and the Madison County Transit District.

The project involves replacement of a large section of the bridge deck, replacement of the bridge guardrails and resurfacing. Construction on the project is scheduled to begin in October. Mayor Tyrone Echols said the city's portion of the funding "represents pretty much every penny we had available. Anywhere there was idle money at the bridge — a little extra in checking accounts or some put away for projects — it was found and committed."

In response to questioning by Alderman Michael Terrell, Echols said the city had "cut it close in some areas" and that some cosmetic repair projects had been put on hold in case the city needed the money allotted for them to meet its funding requirements.

"Before Madison County Transit would commit, they wanted to be sure that we pretty much gave all we could give. I think they are pretty much satisfied that we did," he said.

In other business Tuesday, the aldermen approved payment of bills totaling $99,242 from the McKinley Bridge Repair and Improvement fund. While some of that was for engineering work tied to the rehabilitation project, nearly $50,000 was for repairs to the bridge.

Terrell said R&I bills seem to run $20,000 to $40,000 every month and asked what would happen if the city just decided to quit making some of the repairs.

"Can't we just tell the bridge engineers to quit nickel-diming us to death and not do it?" he asked.

"Is all this work really necessary?"

Echols said the aldermen could quit authorizing the repairs, but "it's also possible to let the bridge fall into the river."

All the repairs being done, Echols said, are repairs to the structure of the bridge that have a direct impact on the safety of the bridge.

"It's 80 years old and some things are just rotting away. There are a lot of (repairs) that need to be done that we aren't doing. We are playing it close we've got to," he said.

"These R&I bills are for things that have to be taken care of. I know a lot of people are under the impression we don't do anything at the bridge, but we have $25,000 to $40,000 in R&I bills every month."

"I know there are a lot of people complaining about the bumpy ride, but that's not really my concern. My concern is that nobody's car falls through the bridge into the Mississippi River."

Officials want Bowles, Bathon to call a truce

Madison County officials refereeing a duel over payroll between Auditor Fred Bathon and County Clerk Evelyn Bowles are calling for a truce.

County Board Finance Committee Chairman Bill Little Thursday took the unexpected step of asking Bathon and Bowles to work out their differences over the payroll system between them, rather than asking the committee to choose one office over the other.

"I would much rather see this way ended and I think you guys have been terrific through the years," Little said.

The committee had been expected to vote Thursday on a proposal by Bathon to shift payroll duties from the clerk's office to his own. Little's compromise proposal, however, appeared to defuse much of the rancor stirred up between the two Democratic officeholders after Bathon made the proposal last month.

Bathon has maintained his staff could eliminate much duplication of tasks in the existing payroll system, in which the auditor's office checks the math and accounting procedures of the clerk's office.

Bowles, however, maintained her office should retain payroll duties because they have traditionally been handled by the clerk's office and because she did not believe Bathon's staff was capable of guaranteeing the secrecy of confidential personnel records.

Debate over Bathon's proposal has been at the center of two stormy Finance Committee meetings this month, featuring shouting matches and personal attacks.

Bathon and Bowles Thursday accepted Little's suggestion that they hash out the disagreement between themselves and meet with the Data Processing Department to work out some solutions.

"No comment," Bowles said when Little asked her what she thought of his plan. "That's fine. Whatever you want is fine. I've cooperated with every department in this county for 40 years and I don't see why that can't continue."

Authors will autograph books here

Best-selling co-authors Don W. Weber and Charles Bosworth Jr. will sign copies of their newest book, "Secret Lessons," and discuss their other two books in a program from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Granite City Public Library Branch, 2145 Johnson Road.

Weber is a former Madison County state's attorney.

"Secret Lessons" is the true story of a school teacher who molested dozens of girls, but drew intense public support after he was charged.

The authors also will show a videotape of the making of the television movie based on their first best-seller, "Precious Victims," the Paula Sings story, and show the movie that was broadcast on CBS last year.

Their second best-seller, "Silent Witness," is the story of the murder of Karla Brown in Wood River.

The following recipe was submitted by Sue Skoklo for the recipe swap.

Chicken Tetrazzini:
16-ounce package of spaghetti
2 chicken breasts
2 large green peppers
8-ounce package shredded cheddar cheese
2 cans cream of mushroom soup

1 clove of garlic
Boil chicken breasts until done, reserving water. Set aside one cup of water. In remaining water, boil spaghetti just until limp. Cut green peppers into medium pieces. Simmer in a small amount of water with the clove of garlic until tender.
Remove chicken breasts from bone and cube. Drain spaghetti. Drain green peppers. Throw garlic clove away. In a large baking dish, layer half the spaghetti, half the chicken, half green peppers, one can of soup and half the cheese.
Four the half cup reserved water over all. Repeat layering. Bake in oven at 325 degrees for 45 minutes until sides are bubbling.

Wolf Den 9, Pack 21, held its den and pack meeting for the month of March.

At their first den meeting, members worked on Achievement Four, Know Your Home and Community.

Boys spent time at the Madison School Board office. They observed part of a school board meeting. After the meeting, they met Superintendent Dan Kosienko, Hilda Everage, assistant superintendent, and board members, John Hamm, Ed Newsome, Sue Skoklo and Donald Turner. Two of the board members are also city aldermen. The boys learned about the operations of the school district and the city government.

Afterwards, the boys toured the Madison Police Station and the City Hall chambers with Sergeant Steve Skoklo.

At their second den meeting, the boys worked on Achievement Six: Start a Collection. The boys brought and showed their collections to each other. There were collections of cars, pencils, seashells, baseball cards, batman cards and hockey cards.

Their monthly pack meeting was held March 23 at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7481. The meeting was opened with the Pledge of Allegiance and the Cub Scout Promise. A welcome was given to all who attended by the cub master, Steve Skoklo.

Den leader Sue Skoklo gave a brief summary of the month's den meeting and the progress her scouts are making towards their Wolf rank.

Awards were given to the following boys:

Matt Skoklo, advancement bead, citizenship pin and bowling and fishing belt loops.

Matt Widel, advancement bead, citizenship pin and bowling and fishing belt loops.

Andy Gehling, advancement bead, citizenship pin and bowling and fishing belt loops.

The scouts presented a skit entitled Skiff Neck.

The closing was a living circle done by the scouts.

Refreshments were served to Sue, Steve and Matt Skoklo, Mike Oresch, Jr., Victor, Margaret and Andy Gehling, Joyce Keller and Matt Widel.

Anyone who would like information on the scouting program can contact Sue Skoklo at 877-1111.

The St. Ann's Altar Society of St. Mary's Church held its monthly meeting at Engelbert Hall on Tuesday, March 22. The meeting was opened with prayer by Mary Clarke, chaplain.

Final plans were made for the annual quilt social bingo to be held at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, April 24, at Engelbert Hall. There will be 24 quilts and one special game. Paper cards will be used, so bring your dibbers.

Students 'shadow' workers, businessmen

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

About 65 students recently spent a day "shadowing" workers in local businesses as the workers went about their daily routine.

In addition, about 15 more students spent the day shadowing teachers and administrators within the Granite City School District.

"It's just a fabulous idea," said Granite City School Superintendent Steve Balen.

"There is just no way a classroom can have every piece of equipment used in the office, business or factory or create the atmosphere of the job site."

"Job shadowing gives the students a chance to see the real world and also learn from someone who is an expert in the field."

The shadowing program was part of the Granite City Partnership for Excellence in Education made up of representatives of local businesses and the Granite City School District.

Earlier, the program brought members of the business community into the schools for a day.

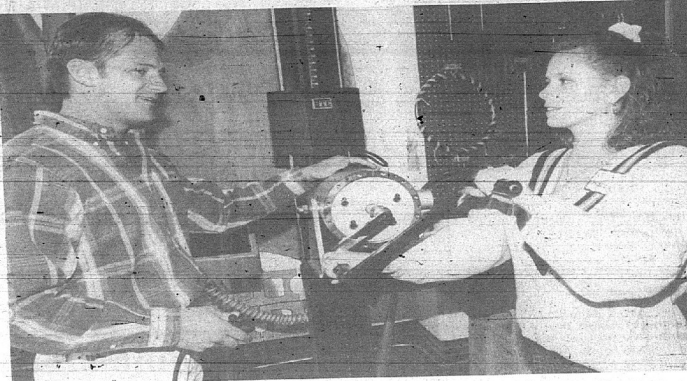

Job shadowing, the next phase of the partnership's program, began with juniors and seniors at the high school being invited to apply for one-day positions at local businesses.

Each student filled out an application, that included such information as grade point average, future plans and a teacher recommendation.

On-campus interviews were then conducted and students were matched with local businesses.

On the assigned day and time, students reported for "work" and spent the day following a person working in a field the student is considering as a career choice.

"It's so exciting — this really worked out well," said Janet Mills of Investments Unlimited, Shane Watson, director of Providence Occupational Health Services' Work Hardening Center, shows Jill Haddix, a senior from Granite City High School, some of the strengthening equipment used to help rehabilitate workers.

one of the coordinators of the program. "Both the students and the business people I talked to said it was a great experience."

During their day at work, students were also introduced to the skill and education requirements for their chosen field.

Balen said it is important that students get a first-hand look at their favorite career field even if the exposure makes the student change his or her mind.

"One of the common problems is that kids make a decision about a career and invest in the necessary education and training only to find out the career is not what they thought it would be and not what they really want to do," Balen said.

The partnership's objective is to help prepare a more efficiently trained and competent work force by providing the highest quality of learning for all students, improving student competencies in basic education subjects, motivating young people toward continuous learning, and assisting in the professional development of school administrators and teachers.

Additionally, the partnership hopes to serve as a catalyst for stimulation of collaboration between the public and private

Woman honored for efforts to aid children of inmates

By Mike Viola
Staff writer

When a mother is sent to jail, the sentence creates hardship for her children — hardships that many times get overlooked. For several years, an East St. Louis woman has worked to help ease the difficulties of area children who have watched their mothers go to prison.

"When you incarcerate a mother, it's kind of like the whole family ends up going to jail," said Elizabeth Short, creator of the Families in Prison Program.

Short was recently honored as the United Way of Greater St. Louis volunteer of the month for April for her work with the program that keeps children in contact with their incarcerated mothers.

The program has been in operation for about four years. Once a month, a group of about 10 children are able to visit their mothers in one of three Illinois Correctional Centers — Dwight, Dixon and Logan.

"Some of these kids haven't been able to see their mothers for two or three years," said Short, who pointed out that the mother-child bond still has to be addressed even when the mother is incarcerated.

Transportation is provided for the children and their caregiver. Referrals on which mothers take part in the program are made by prison officials.

In order to overcome the many legal hurdles involved, Short utilized the Prison Ministry Services and social service systems to gain support and meet requirements to implement a comprehensive program to address the specific needs of children and their families.

In collaboration with the YMCA, Short now serves as liaison between the prison, children and their guardians.

"This program would not have been possible without the persistence and diligence of Elizabeth Short," said Linda Carter, director of the YWCA of St. Clair County.

The program is co-sponsored by the YWCA and the Aldersgate Community Development Center in East St. Louis which is affiliated with the United Methodist Church.

The United Way provides financial support for the Families in Prison program. Last year, Short was a finalist for the JC Penney Gold Rule/United Way Volunteer Award.

"I'm absolutely sold on the partnership program and hope it continues to grow," Balen said. "I have often said that I wish we could offer a class in Granite City Steel."

"We could have a person, or maybe several persons, come in and explain the operation of the steel mill. By the time the student finished, the student would know the operation from top to bottom."

"There is no limit to the possibilities of this program if you let your imagination wander. It's great for the kids and it's great for businesses."

"Too often in the past, businesses have been critical of education programs. This (partnership) brings them into the education process and I believe their contributions can be invaluable."

All students participating in the program are to receive certificates of participation at the annual recognition ceremony featuring the students and the business participants.

Diversification key to investing

Submitted by Jeffrey Prosser, investment representative with Edward D. Jones Co.

Managing money is not an exact science, because expectations can be altered by national and worldwide economic changes.

In the 1980s, for example, we experienced double-digit inflation and unprecedented interest rates. Today, we're faced with the lowest interest rates in more than 25 years.

What's the best way to manage money through all of these economic conditions? Most experts agree that diversification, or asset allocation, is one of the safest approaches.

Investors can find financial professionals everywhere offering "asset allocation." The term may refer to anything from a simple diversification of investments to elaborate computer programs that analyze a wide array of variables.

The same thing happened in the 1980s when the term

"financial planning" became more of a sales buzzword than a term describing a legitimate way to structure one's finances.

Anyone offering you asset-allocation services should take into account the following four concerns:

1. Inaccurate assumptions can make major differences in investment results.

For example, if your financial professional allocates assets based on stock market returns over the past 10 years, you may be disappointed, because returns over the past decade were twice what they have been over the past 70 years.

2. History has a way of repeating itself, but relying too much on historical returns can be disappointing.

For example, the historical relationship between stock and bond movement are relatively good indicators. On the other hand, real estate values can appear quite differently when using appraised value rather than real return, which includes the effects of inflation.

Money managers should use history as a guide, not a rule.

3. Planning is important, but implementing an allocation plan is vital.

Investment professionals and clients first must agree on how funds are to be allocated. Then the plan should be implemented. Factors such as age and earnings in the future need to be reviewed.

4. Finally, make it simple. Plans that are over-complicated, filled with theory and jargon, can be confusing to the point where it's difficult to take action.

Any asset allocation plan, along with expected risks and returns, should be simple to understand.

Investors should know the rules and recognize the pitfalls when working with financial professionals to develop asset allocation plans.

Know your professional, and expect him or her to consider the concerns discussed in this article.

Disabilities supposed to be reviewed

By Bill Hunsot

Q. I work for a small business keeping company records. My employer does not take Social Security taxes out of my pay, because he says I'm an independent contractor. He says I am responsible for my own Social Security taxes. Can he do this?

A. If you truly are an independent contractor, you must pay Social Security and Medicare self-employment taxes. Your employer would not be responsible for withholding taxes or paying the employer share of Social Security taxes. And, according to the Internal Revenue Service, he also would be exempt from paying unemployment taxes and workers' compensation premiums on you.

The IRS has found that some employers intentionally classify employees incorrectly as independent contractors. Their motive, of course, is to save hundreds, or even thousands, of dollars they would otherwise spend on payroll taxes.

The IRS uses a list of 20 factors in classifying workers as employees or contractors. Most of them concern the amount of control the employer has over the worker. For example, if someone is telling you when, how and where to work, you probably are an employee.

Who sets your work hours? If you do, you are more likely to be considered a contractor. Are you paid by the hour, day, week or month? Or are you paid by the job? Contractors are paid by the job. Employees are more likely to be paid a wage or salary.

Who provides your tools, supplies and equipment? Who pays your business expenses? Contractors generally supply their own materials and pay business expenses.

An employer who improperly classifies workers as independent contractors may have to pay fines, back taxes and interest. Employers who would like to know more can borrow a videotape, "Employee or Independent Contractor?" from the IRS.

Employees who suspect they are being classified incorrectly also should contact the IRS. The IRS phone number is 1-800-829-1040.

Q. When I went on disability several years ago, I was told that my disability case would have to be reviewed periodically. How often can I expect a review?

A. Disability cases are supposed to be reviewed every one to seven years. But Social Security Commissioner Shirley Chater recently told Congress that the agency is more than 1 million disability reviews behind schedule.

Chater cited a 40 percent increase in the number of disability applications and a "tight federal budget environment" as the reasons for the backlog. As a result, your disability review could be delayed for several years.

Arthritis hits young too

If a child avoids using a particular limb, shows signs of stiffness or complains about aching joints, it may not be just growing pains — it could be arthritis. According to the Arthritis Foundation, juvenile arthritis is a painful, sometimes debilitating condition that affects as many as 200,000 American children.

A child with arthritis might find climbing steps, throwing a ball, opening a door or even walking very difficult or even impossible.

Along with the pain, arthritis brings fatigue. Some children may have difficulties at school or with the rigorous activities of a field trip.

Parents, teachers and schoolmates also may have difficulty with the challenges faced by young people who have arthritis. People don't expect to see arthritis in young adults, much less in children. The problem with children with arthritis experience are real and painful, even if no outward signs of the illness appear.

With early diagnosis and proper support, children, their families and their schools can learn to cope with juvenile arthritis and enjoy a full range of activities.

Contact your local Arthritis Foundation chapter for information about childhood arthritis and the American Juvenile Arthritis Organization.

For general arthritis information and a free "Basic Facts" brochure, call the Arthritis Foundation Information Line at 1 (800) 283-7800.

15. Thomas Paul, an officer with the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois, testified that Aulabaugh had admitted that there were many times Aulabaugh sold illegal drugs and collected money for illegal drugs at the Bar.

Paul also testified that Aulabaugh had admitted storing illegal drugs in an apartment above the Bar, including keeping "amounts of cocaine in a shoe box in the upstairs bedroom."

"We, the city of Madison, want to make it clear that illegal drug sales and distribution will not be tolerated in any business in the city and we will not tolerate any other violations of city, state or federal laws," Bellcoff said.

"Everyone needs to know we will deal with these cases severely."

At the April 15 hearing, Gary Peel, an attorney representing property owners Dale and Marilyn Aulabaugh, had asked to be allowed to participate.

He said that revocation of the license, which would mean no one could hold a liquor license at that address for at least one year — "amounts to taking partial value of the property without due process of law."

Peel said revocation would "take away a use for which the owners are due compensation." Bellcoff ruled Peel and the property owners had "no standing" at the hearing.

street. The special district was established to ensure a smooth transition from dense residential to mostly commercial development along Madison Avenue, and to protect nearby residents from the nuisances associated with commercial development.

Alderman Casmer Skubish, a proponent of the zoning change, said that Granite City is competing with nearby communities to attract business and industry. "We're a steel town. We've got to face it. We don't have a luxury resort... but people in Granite City have good-paying jobs," Skubish said.

Earlier in the evening, three audience members opposed to the amendment were allowed to speak to the council.

"It is crucial for the long-range view that you comply with the zoning regulations in place," Joe McGinness told the council.

"There are other places in our city (this car lot) could be placed," McGinness said.

Ralph Thorpe, a professional planner, said the city's Planning and Zoning Commission is considering the "lowest court in the land" in zoning matters.

He said the city's comprehensive development plan is crucial to the city's future and that the proposed ordinance "is not in the best interest of the community."

"You are here to protect the interests of the citizens of this community," Thorpe said.

Jeff Worthen, a former alderman and chairman of the Planning and Zoning Committee when the comprehensive plan and the B-1 ordinance were adopted, said the proposed amendment "doesn't just affect Madison Avenue, but the entire city."

He said that the city, by adopting the comprehensive plan and consistently utilizing it in making zoning decisions, has recently begun to win zoning cases in court.

Because used car lots are classified as a highway commercial use — the least restrictive commercial use — in the city's zoning ordinance, the amendment would, in effect, make the B-1 district a commercial district, Worthen said.

"You can't violate the trust of (nearby residents) when the plan was put into effect," Worthen said.

Worthen referred the matter to committee where Partner, Skubish and aldermen Walter Miller, Tom Candler, Juanita Crowley, Eddie Asadorian, Foster Frederick, Bob Page and Mac Warfield.

Tarpoff and Aldermen Jim Miller, Sandy Crites, Nick Petriolo and Bob Shipley were in favor of bringing the amendment to a final vote.

Alderman Kim Affolter was absent from the meeting.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Recently a case was decided on appeal in Illinois involving injuries sustained by a driver in an automobile accident. The amount of money recovered by a plaintiff in a case such as this may be related to the actions taken by the injured party following the accident.

In this case, the plaintiff was returning to her home from a shopping trip. She noticed that the traffic ahead of her was stopped, so she also pulled to a stop, and a few moments later she was rear-ended by another vehicle. Not only with a rear-end collision resulting in injuries, the plaintiff would be entitled to recover damages. However, the injured plaintiff, arguably made several mistakes following this accident.

After the collision, the plaintiff left her car and came over to the defendant to inquire if she was injured. At the time, the plaintiff told the driver who rear-ended her vehicle that she was not hurt. She made a similar statement to the police officer at the scene, and he put this information in his report. The plaintiff's neck and back began to hurt the day after the accident. In a case such as this, a party should never make a statement regarding injuries at the accident scene, since physical problems may not arise until later.

Further, the injured plaintiff did not seek medical treatment until one week after the accident, even though she was hurt. In many cases, an insurance company attorney will try to argue to a jury that the plaintiff must not have been seriously hurt in light of the delay in treatment. That is what happened in this case, and it ultimately hurt the plaintiff's case.

The injured plaintiff went to an internist, a chiropractor, and an acupuncturist, in an effort to relieve the effects of her injury. However, she discontinued treatments to visit her son in Arizona. She later resumed treatments when she returned to Illinois. But the several week gap in treatment allowed the defendant's attorney to argue that if the plaintiff was truly injured, she would not leave Illinois and interrupt her treatment.

For all of the foregoing reasons, the jury found in the defendant's favor. This case was affirmed on appeal, and thus an injured driver received nothing in this case.

from Mississippi to capture the SKOAL/Randit Racing Sprint Car feature over 1993 Tri-City Sprint Car Champion Tommy Scott. Dunn lined up in the last row for the main event, just behind Scott. Tommy Mikels led into the first turn at the drop of the green but a yellow flag for Butch Nutaut nullified his lead. Mikels again jumped into the first turn on the restart but Dunn was already on the move, passing several cars to take second. With Scott shadowing his every move, Dunn grabbed the point on lap three and set sail for the checkers. Dunn breezed to the $1,000 win over Scott, Mikels, Nutaut and Jeff Galas. Ray Wagner bested Shawn Rayfield, Bobby Buttle, Tom Ratajczyk and Stu Springer in the inaugural AARA Super Sportsman feature. Wayne Downing won his first AARA Street Stock feature of 1994 over Steve Seitz, Joe Metter, Dean Pruett and Jim Mettillie. John Stanton took the Tri-City/Budweiser Pro Stock main, besting Jeff Winters, Brian Wolfmeier, Tommy Krankel and Mark Freeman.

Sarah Gieson, Amanda Pashen and Brandi Ficker were the first guards off the bench. The Gators had several other key players, including forwards Stephanie Ambuchi, Mary Biller, Brooke Bolandis, Peggy Hammond, Janelle Hanks and guards Kim Boone and Kim Snell.

Among the season's top highlights were victories over Bethalto and Collinsville. On Feb. 24, the Gators trailed Bethalto 12-6 at halftime before rallying for a 23-19 win. Tate had 19 points, including 11 during a four-minute stretch in the fourth quarter.

On March 8, Grigsby defeated Collinsville 24-22 after losing to the same team by 35 points earlier in the season. Grigsby was the only team to defeat Collinsville, which won the conference with a 15-1 record. Edwardsville finished second in the conference ahead of Grigsby.

"That was our biggest win," Mason said. "We reached our goal. When we were 3-1, I thought we could go 12-4 and that's what we did."

•Players needed for Granite City select team

A select fast-pitch softball team for girls born in 1980-81 is being formed for this summer. For more information, call Frank Faulkner at 876-6402 or Lynn Wright at 872-3023.

The team will not be affiliated with the Granite City Park District, as previously reported.

hits. "(Willis) broke through and got consistent," Hutchings said. "She pitched really well for us." Jill Wozniak relieved Willis in the fourth and allowed the Flycatchers to score their five runs in the top of the fifth, but it wasn't enough as Granite City closed out the five-inning contest.

Getting the initial win of the season is something Hutchings hopes to build on.

"The kids were expecting to win the game. And that's what we need," Hutchings said. "When you expect to be competitive good things will happen."

Next up for the Lady Warriors is Thursday's SWC matchup with Collinsville (3-5). Hutchings said he'll go with ace Julie Tanksley against the Lady Kahoks.

"Collinsville is always tough and they seem to come up with a good pitcher every year," Hutchings said. "If we can get Tanksley to go a good three or four innings and then bring in Willis, that's a good 1-2 punch."

Hutchings was also encouraged Tuesday by the Lady Warrior defense, which played flawlessly. "If we play solid defense and get that pitching, we'll be all right," he said. "This was a good step forward for us."

•Staff

game winning streak. "Jason Talley has pitched well," Lignouli said. "So have (relievers) Matt Tieman and Steve Geske. Everybody on the staff has pitched in and done a good job. As a team, we have been very good."

Talley will face Civic Memorial, and Winfield will start Saturday's finale against Greenville.

NOTES: Because of a change in scheduling, the Warriors will not face Edwardsville in the tournament this year. The two rivals will meet instead April 29 in a night game at Edwardsville. The Warriors and Tigers have developed a heated rivalry over the years. Last year, Granite City defeated Edwardsville in the Round Robin Tournament but lost to the Tigers in the Edwardsville Regional title game.

"It's a good rivalry," Lignouli said. "It will be good for us to play them there." Granite City is scheduled to make up its April 12 Southwest Conference game against Belleville East on April 28.

Horoscope

Thursday, April 21, 1994
ARIES (March 21-April 19). Refuse to accept financial terms with which you are not comfortable. You are most productive working in the morning or early afternoon. You and a lover get along best when you spend more time together. Be organized.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20). A family member has a reasonable explanation for his or her behavior. Discourage a spouse or partner from spending money frivolously. Confirm reservations and travel arrangements. You make a change on the job.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You and a love interest discover that you have quite different tastes. Avoid spending a lot of money where it won't be appreciated. You bump into an old acquaintance at a social gathering. You find luck at games.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Your air of authority keeps subordinates from arguing with you. Be honest with a lover in whom you are no longer interested. A family member advises you on some investments. Brush up on a skill.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). A disagreement ends up bringing you and a pal closer. Avoid backing out of an obligation or responsibility. Reimburse colleagues or relatives who pay your share. You are more and more attracted to a co-worker.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY. (April 21). Give up until June 1, when you must sit back and learn to accept. You bask in popularity this summer. Reconciliations are likely in August. An Aquarius or Gemini offers you money, encouragement and backing all year. Children side with you in dispute this fall. Singles find love in their own neighborhoods with Scorpius or Libras. Your lucky numbers are 2, 9 and 13.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A love interest proves that he or she is dedicated. Arrange social activities in which to participate while you are on a business trip. Pay a bill in installments. Be tolerant of a relative, and you get along very well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Brush up on a skill at which you have grown rusty. Avoid looking at the big picture until you have taken some of the little steps along the way. A love interest finds your enthusiasm encouraging. Pick up a check.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Take advantage of one of the perks associated with your job, and all your work is worth your while. A spouse or lover is willing to meet you half way. You receive a bargain or discount. Keep cool under pressure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Congratulate a pal on his or her good fortune. Your tolerance is a healthy balance to the attitude of an extremely critical colleague. You receive news from a distant spouse or lover. You are asked for a deposit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). A financial cloud brings a professional silver lining. Be flexible with lovers who are testing you. Non-stop work helps creativity. A check is good, but a promise may not be.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Talking romantic matters into the ground doesn't solve any problems—give the subject a rest for a while. A job opportunity promises more experience than money. Be tactful with a colleague with whom you disagree.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Domestic projects are more challenging than professional ones today. Enlist the support of a spouse or partner. Children request money and material possessions. You receive good news from a boss.

3-week acting workshop being offered at SIUE

"Acting for Television," a three-week workshop demonstrating an acting technique that can be very different from working on a theater stage, will be offered for credit or noncredit from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. three times weekly from June 6 to June 24 at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The workshop, offered through the SIUE Department of Theater and Dance, is part of the university's SummerArts '94 program. Scenes, exercises and commercials will be performed on camera, videotaped and critiqued. The workshop also includes "cold reading/quick-study" techniques for dramatic, commercial and "corporate video" acting.

According to William Grivna, SIUE professor of theater and dance and director of performance for the department, the workshop is open to amateurs as well as professionals. Grivna, an award-winning director, said: "Every summer, this workshop attracts actors from all areas of the business, from those with minimal experience to professional models from all over the St. Louis Metropolitan Area. Undergraduates not formerly admitted to SIUE, and who are enrolling in the workshop for credit, must have an application for enrollment completed and accepted two weeks before the workshop begins. Noncredit registration for the workshop is $275, which includes a non-refundable $50 deposit.

For more information about credit fees, call the SIUE Office of Admissions and Records, 692-2010, or, from St. Louis toll-free, (314) 621-5168, Ext. 2010.

For more information about the workshop and available housing, call the SIUE Department of Theater and Dance, 692-2773, or, from St. Louis toll-free, (314) 621-5168, Ext. 2773.

Showtime members aid telethon

Fifteen ShowTime members along with veteran comedian Arte Johnson; John Orlando, son of singer Tony Orlando; members of the Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders; and veterans St. Louis newscaster Bob in Smith manned telephones during the broadcasting of the telethon at the Adams Mark Hotel in St. Louis from 1 to 6 a.m. on March 6.

All volunteered their time to help raise money for the many needy children and children's agencies that Variety Club sponsors throughout the St. Louis and surrounding metropolitan area.
